It s the knowledge of a job well done that provides the peace of mind for him to transition into each new avenue life presents as his windows of opportunity arrive and beckon him to step on through its threshold and into the unknown. These steps into the Void can be scary. They present a wealth of uncertainty and surprises that require one to make it up as you go since life doesn t send out a roadmap with directions that spell out which way is right when we reach our respective crossroads and need to know what road to choose. The conclusion he comes to is that a human doing doesn t necessary make a Human Being unless you love what you do to Be.
