Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from 1984 Annual Report: October 1, 1983-September 30, 1984 The functions of the Office of the Associate Director can best be described as those which involve scientific coordination among scientific divisions of the National Cancer Institute. The formation and rearrangement of scientific units, the incorporation of new developments in science into intramural management structures, and the general consideration of contract support for intramural research are of major concern. The Frederick Cancer Research Facility system of research and support contracts is a major responsibility. Coordination of intramural science also extends to the questions of outside activities and the determination of patent status rights in derivative inventions. Several major areas of activity took place in the past year. These blended basic science expertise in various segments of cancer research to effect major intramural scientific decisions. In general, two major types of events are influenced and modified by the Associate Director. The first is the formation or restructuring of basic science laboratories. This has occurred and is occurring with all Divisions. Close advisory and consulting activity with the Director...
